Oregon Rheumatologist List

2008 Edition

The Arthritis Foundation—Oregon Branch is pleased to provide this rheumatologist referral list as a public service to those seeking a physician specializing in the diagnosis and treatment of arthritis.

Rheumatologists are physicians specializing in the diagnosis and non-surgical treatment of arthritis and related disorders of joints, muscles and bones. Physicians in this specialty are typically trained in such areas as internal medicine or pediatrics and then complete additional training in rheumatic diseases.

This list is based on public information accessible from the American College of Rheumatology (ACR) web site www.rheumatology.org.

The list is limited to Fellow Members who must meet a set of stringent criteria, including, but not limited to:

1. Certification by the American Board of Internal Medicine, Sub-Specialty Board of Rheumatology
2. Completion of two years of sub-specialty training in a recognized rheumatology program

In addition to rheumatologists, many other types of physicians also diagnose and treat arthritis, including family/primary care physicians, orthopedic surgeons, internists, physiatrists, pediatricians, and podiatrists.*

The Arthritis Foundation does not evaluate the professional qualifications or competence of individual physicians and the Arthritis Foundation makes no representations, implied or otherwise, about the competence or qualifications of any physicians listed here. The Arthritis Foundation strongly recommends that you consult your primary care physician before relying on this list.
