You Can Raise Awareness and Funds.

Colleen Ryan's daughter, Caitlin, has juvenile arthritis — and Colleen isn't content to wait for a cure; she wants to make it happen. That's why she leads one of our most successful Walk to Cure Arthritis teams each year.

“I can't imagine an organization doing more to fight arthritis than the Arthritis Foundation. My Walk team raises $33,000 for our cause, which is more than I make in a year. But that's how important this is.”

— Colleen Ryan, Arthritis Foundation volunteer

The more money raised in the Walk to Cure Arthritis, the more chance there is to help kids like Caitlin Ryan have healthy, happy lives.

Massage Envy Spa is passionately committed to supporting the Arthritis Foundation. Since 2011, they have raised more than $2.5 million through Walk to Cure Arthritis sponsorship and the annual Healing Hands for Arthritis fundraiser.

“We have 50 million people across the country who have arthritis. Three hundred thousand kids have arthritis ... and it makes us feel so good to be able to do something about it.”

— Joe Luongo, COO, Massage Envy Spa, speaking on Bloomberg TV's "Taking Stock," March 12, 2014
